NEWS of the WEEK

Hiller Warns Reds

Nuremberg, Germany.—In a demonstration against Bolshevism lasting the entire day, 187,500 Storm Troops marched before Chancellor Hitler, who announced, in reviewing them: "Not 5% of my guards are standing here. We could have twenty such demonstrations simultaneously in different places in Germany."

Avalanche Hurts Death

Loen, Norway.—When an estimated million tons of rock crashed into a lake during the night from the Ravnfjeld, 6,388 feet high, it sent a 300-foot wave rolling down the Boddal Valley, washing away farm houses and taking 74 lives.

Court of Wisdom Proposed

Boston, Mass.—Among the leading scientists of the world, gathered here for Harvard's Tercentenary, sentiment favors the formation of a "Court of Wisdom," pooling the collective accumulation of knowledge for the purpose of increasing the health, wealth and happiness of mankind.

Rebels Take San Sebastian

Madrid, Spain.—While this city continues to hold out against sporadic bombardment, the Rebel forces have occupied the seaport of San Sebastian and have raised the red and gold flag of the old monarchy. The city is largely evacuated, many taken with little or no resistance.

Colton Pickers Scarce

Memphis, Tenn.—"Go to work or go to jail" was the edict laid down by local officials when a scarcity of pickers threatened the cotton crop, forced to early maturity by an over-hot summer. Growers offered the highest prices in years for experienced hands, but state that many workers prefer to remain on relief.

Cold Showers Condemned

New York City.—A thousand members listened to weighty papers at the American Congress of Physical Therapy, including one by Dr. Cyrus J. Betrand of the Hospital for Joint Diseases, who said cold showers did more harm than good, endorsed by Dr. Robert H. Kennedy of Columbia University, who cautioned physicians against cold douching patients during convalescence.

Bethel Baseball Mad

New York City.—With the Yankees of the American League pennant and the Giants holding firmly to the National League lead, fans have gone baseball mad at the prospect of a World's Series fight out between two local teams. On Sunday last a record-breaking crowd of 64,000 filled the Giants' Park with an estimated 46,000 turned away.

Trans-Atlantic Flight Test

Port Washington, N. Y.—The flight of two all-metal German flying boats launched this long Island stretch as a provisional terminal for trans-Atlantic flights. Both had been extricated from the treacherous Schwabenland off the shores and intended a stop at Berlin to study air currents, land facilities and gather other data necessary for a regular route.

Tennis Queen Deposed

Great Kills, N. Y.—After winning the Women's National Tennis championship four times, Helen Wills was defeated by Alice Marble, Boston Peacock. In the men's final Donald Budge, winning the United States title for the third consecutive year, beat his predecessor, George M. C. A. She and Mrs. Budge will be at the All England Club after Nov. 1 at Forest Glade, London.

BARROWS WINS BY 40,000 MONDAY

BETHEL GIRL SCOUT DELEGATE TO EASTERN STATES EXPOSITION

State Goes Republican, Winning Three Congressional Seats, Senator, and Governor. Brann Wants Recount

In one of the largest votes in many years the County and State went Republican Monday. Senator Wallace H. White was re-elected over the Democratic candidate, Governor Louis J. Brann, with a lead of about 5,000. After a conference with national leaders Brann announced that he will seek a recount. Lewis O. Barrows of Newport, Republican candidate for governor, received over 40,000 more votes than his opponent, F. Harold Dubord of Waterville. A record vote of 310,000 was cast in the State.

Three Republican representatives to Congress were elected. In this district James C. Oliver of South Portland defeated Simon M. Hamilton of the same place who was seeking a second term. Victors in the other districts were Clyde H. Smith and Ralph O. Brewster.

In the County contests the Republican total ran about 2000 ahead of the Democrats, with Francis leading the present incumbent, William O. Frothingham, by 2,500. Five Republican and three Democratic representatives to legislature were elected. Tabulated returns are on page three.

Reverend

The County voted yes by a large majority on the fourth and fifth referendum questions.

Rumford and Mexico voted yes on all three questions in regard to liquor while Norway voted in favor of the State store and sale of malt beverages. Bethel, Paris Oxford and Woodstock voted no on all three questions.

The vote in other towns is reported as follows:

State liquor stores: Yes, Byron, Gilead, Newry, Norway, Roxbury, Stow, Upton; No, Brownfield, Buckfield, Canton, Denmark, Hebron, Lovell, Newry, Peru, Porter, Roxbury, Stoneham, Stow, Sumner, Sweden.

Sale of wines and spirits: Yes, Byron, Gilead; No, Brownfield, Blackfield, Canton, Denmark, Hebron, Lovell, Newry, Peru, Porter, Roxbury, Stoneham, Stow, Sumner, Sweden, Upton.

Sale of malt beverages: Yes, Byron, Gilead, Newry, Norway, Roxbury, Upton, Sweden; No, Brownfield, Buckfield, Canton, Denmark, Hebron, Lovell, Peru, Porter, Roxbury, Stoneham, Sumner.

WHEELER-NASH

A wedding of much interest to Bethel people took place at Camden on September 6th, when Miss Pearl Arlona Nash became the wife of Early W. Wheeler of Bethel. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Winfield Witham of the Congregational church, using the double ring ceremony.

Mr. Wheeler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wheeler of Bethel. He attended the local schools and graduated from Gould Academy in 1928, where he was prominent in baseball and other athletic interests, besides being active and popular. The past three years he has been teacher in other school interests. He engaged in CCC work at Penobscot Bay and Camden and of course in with the Katahdin Camp as Director Supervisor.

Mrs. Wheeler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley Nash of Camden and a graduate of Camden High School. In 1914 she married Mr. Frank P. Chandler of Auburn, a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Chandler of Pownal, Me., and a graduate of Auburn High School. They have had a son, Mr. Walter E. Chandler, and a daughter, Mrs. Anna Walton of Auburn. She received her education at Bridgton Academy and Mt. Holyoke Seminary and at one time taught at a reform school where her father was superintendent.

In 1921 she married Francis F. Chandler, proprietor of the Bethel Inn and with the exception of a few years lived there until the death of her husband in 1925, subsequently making her home with her son at South Paris and with a daughter in Auburn.

She was a member of the Bethel Congregational Church for 25 years, was a member of the Ladies' Club and for many years acted as recording secretary for the Oxford County W. C. T. U.

She is survived by a son, Walter E. Chandler, of South Paris, two daughters, Mrs. Marion Bowring of Madison, Wash., Mrs. Emma F. Chandler of Auburn; a brother, Mr. W. W. Chandler of Pownal, Me.; a sister, Mrs. Francesca Ferguson of Auburn, Mass.; 14 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Bethel General Home, Route 10, at 2 p.m. Friday. Burial will be in the cemetery at Bethel.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY

"American industry was created by the American people to fulfill the vision that created for the American people the highest standard of living in history," so says "Factoring Management and Maintenance,"
one of the McGraw-Hill publications in a brief history of manufacturing industries in the United States.

Major industrial change of the last hundred years has been America's separation from a promotional and local to a nationally integrated nation. Between 1920 and 1930 the country's population had tripled. Power that once was the prime mover of the nation's revolution, then an obscure factory worker had the power to move the world.

Today he is dead at the bank or in jail in 1937.

In the half century preceding

1930 the same says the nation had increased from 10 to 16

manufacturing industries alone that employ 10,000,000 workers and that is only 10,000,000 more than those employing at present.

However, a 10% jump in our standard over the 1930 level would put employment in almost 16,000,000 men in war factories.

Answering according to the survey to 90% of the American standard of living, it would well above even the 1930 high level. In the 1930 standard, 40% of the nation's factory workers were employed at less than

$1.00 a day.

Today, 60% of the nation's factory workers are employed at less than

$1.00 a day.

1,200 TAXES A DAY FOR THE AVERAGE MAN

CHICAGO.—With federal indirect ("hidden") taxes increased approximately 25 per cent during the Roosevelt administration, there are now more than 1,200 hidden taxes involved in the daily life of the average man, Robert Kratky, director of the tax division of the Republican National committee here, declared. He said there are 300 more in the daily life of the average woman.

"The man's day begins with the alarm clock, on which there is a luxury tax of ten cents, in addition to 30 other hidden taxes," Mr. Kratky said.

"Taxes now take 26 per cent of the cost of underwear, 20 to 40 per cent of the cost of soap and 21 per cent of the cost of razor blades."

"There are 44 taxes in a pair of overalls, 62 on a shirt, 63 on a suit, 53 on a hat, 60 on a tie, 62 on a pair of socks and 63 on an overcoat. Taxes take $3.53 on an $18 suit, 59 cents on a $3 hat, 20 cents on a $1 tie, 7 cents from a 35 cent pair of socks and $3 from a $25 overcoat."

At the breakfast table, Mrs. Average Man can help her husband count.

"Fifty taxes take 2 cents from a dime loaf of bread," said Mr. Kratky. Sugar's 43 taxes represent 23 per cent of the cost. A 35 cent pound of meat would have cost only 28 cents, but for 38 taxes."

"With this drain on the family income, the living struggle has become more burdensome day after day under the Roosevelt administration. There is not much chance of 'The Forgotten Man' getting a raise from his company, for his firm is paying taxes at the rate of more than $1,500 a year per man employed."

Workers Bear High Cost of Bureaucracy; Hurley

BUCKHANNON, W. VA. — The New Deal has saddled upon the backs of workers the most extensive bureaucracy and the greatest debt in the history of the nation, Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war, said here in an address at a district Republican rally.

Most of the obligations the New Deal has created against the taxpayers are held by the "money changers," Mr. Hurley said. "The taxpayer will not only have to pay the amount borrowed by the New Deal, but will have to pay in interest and service charges to the 'money changers' $2 for every dollar borrowed."

"While the New Deal is telling the workers of its friendship for them and telling the young people how it admires and loves them, it is at the same time handing the workers and the rising generation the bill for all its waste."

NO COMMENT NEEDED

College students graduated this year are finding more jobs awaiting them at any time since 1931, according to Robert F. Moore, secretary of appointments at Columbia University, New York. Mr. Moore reports that large industrial business organizations are faced by an alarming gap in their ranks as the result of depression.

He committee not only recommends the endorsement of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President, but also all of the workers of the New Deal to not only support President Roosevelt in this national campaign, but to work for his re-election, so that chances of humanity may be added and the path of the toilers workers of the State and nation made more tolerable."

Mr. Moore reports that large industrial business organizations are faced by an alarming gap in their ranks as the result of depression.

The evidence that business is returning to normal activity is the stimulus of the New Deal to be found in the fact that organizations which laid off large numbers of employees are seeking help from the bottom and are going to young college men to fill increasing vacancies.

Moore reported that whereas the salary a young graduate expected last year was $150 a month compensation this year has risen to $175 for the better positions.

He noted that formerly paid "nothing," he added,

"for up to $50 a month. With this gain, many companies confronted with the fact that for years they have failed to turn in bills in the better jobs the men at the top are in need assistance. They are seeking to fill young men who are trained quickly to meet the needs of renewed business and

CHAPTER VII

DAWN was breaking over Wilton when a trim motor car, bearing a New York number plate, slipped quietly into the village and drew up at the town garage.

From it stepped a man, small and somewhat bent. "May I leave my car here?" he inquired of the lad who was sweeping out the building.

"Sure." "Fill her up for me, please. And you might clean her a bit. Can you tell me where a Mr. Heath is staying?"

"Heath! The chap who ran around on the Cracker Cove sand bar! He's over to The Widder's."

"Where's that?"

"The Widder lives out yonder at the Hamptons."

"How does one get there?"

"Well, the only way to reach the house when the tide's full, as it now is, is to row."

"Where'll I find a boat?"

"That I couldn't say. The Widder keeps her other side of the channel. Methinks, though, if you was to go down to the beach some fisherman would give you a lift across. Most any of 'em would admire to if you're a friend of Marcia Howe!"

The stranger bowed but offered no comment. "Thank you," he replied briefly. "Will this road take me to the beach?"

"Straight as an arrow." With passing additional words or time the stranger nodded and started off briskly in the direction indicated. When he reached the beach he halted, scanning eagerly the silvery houses beyond the channel. Disappearing no one in sight he dragged from the shore a yellow dory, clambered into it, and catching up the oars began to row toward the doffing silhouettes against the water and the glory of the morning sky.

In the meantime, both Marcia and Sylvia had wakened early and were half.

The kitchen fire was already snapping merrily in the stove, however, and the table was spread before the latter made her appear more.

She came in, carrying a thick envelope.

"By gosh, Sylvia, how you startled me!" Marcia exclaimed. "I did not hear you come down stairs. Why are you up so early?"

"I'm going to town to catch the morning mail. I have to get off this letter to Horrie. You see, if I didn't answer promptly he might think the candy had gone astray," explained the girl.

"Oh, of course, you must thank him for the candy," Marcia agreed. "Still, is it necessary to do so in such rush—so late to the village this morning?"

"I mean to run over."

"I'm afraid you can't, dear. I discovered last night the boat was gone. Eleanor's brother must have appropriated it when he was here yesterday. I don't give him a good lecture when I see him. It is a serious thing to be left here with no way of getting back. In fact, here we are with this tremendously important letter not being posted immediately—such things!"

With eyes twinkling with laughter, Marcia cast a mischievous glance at her companion. "It isn't just to thank Horrie for the candy that I'm writing," that young lad replied slyly. "You see, he asked if he might come to Wilton for his summer vacation. He has to know so he can make his plans."

"I see," smiled Marcia. "Under such conditions, I suppose the sooner the letter is sent the better."

"The sooner I start, the sooner I shall be back, I suppose," Sylvia answered with feigned reluctance. "Men are so unreasonable. Any errands?"

"Not today, thanks. Just the mail."

"I'll wait for it."

The eagerness betrayed by the reply left not the slightest doubt that Sylvia would wait, and gaily.

As the door closed behind her, Marcia smiled whimsically.

She prepared Heath's breakfast tray, and was about to take it upstairs when there was a gentle knock at the kitchen door.

A stranger stood upon the threshold.

"Is Mr. Stanley Heath staying here?" inquired he.

"Yes."

"Am I currier Mr. Heath sent for me?"

"Of course! Come in, won't you? Mr. Heath is expecting you. I'll tell him you are here."

"You needn't do that, madam. If you will just show me where he is—"

"At the head of the stairs."

"Very good. Thank you, madam. I will go up."

Marcia soon heard the invalid's voice, imperious and eager, each sentence ending with an interrogation. The tinges of silence which intervened and which at first she took to be pauses, she presently decided represented the inaudible and subtler replies of Currier.

To judge from the sounds, Heath was pouring out an avalanche of questions.

"He has forgotten all about breakfast," murmured Marcia. "I'll take it up."

She mounted the stairs softly that her coming might break in as little as possible upon the conversation of her two guests.

She was alone in the library when I went in," Heath was saying, and turned so white that she feared she might faint or scream. Luckily she did neither.

"You know what I'm after," I said. "The jewels. Come back them over." At that, she began to cry.

"Quickly," I repeated. "Some one may come."

"With that she produced the jewel case, pouring out a torrent of explanations.

"I stopped no longer than I had to, I assure you. In no time I had made my getaway. Every detail of my plan would have gone smoothly but for the fog. I lost my bearings completely. Imagine my amazement at finding myself here."

Marcia waited to hear no more. So Heath really had taken the jewels from the resisting woman who owned them—taken them against her will and made off with them!

He owned it!

"Nay, more! Far from regretting what he had done, in his tone rang a note of satisfaction in his accomplishment.

She had never believed him guilty. Not until she heard the bitter irreverent confession from his own lips did she waver, and even then she battled against the truth, refusing to be convinced. There must be some explanation, she told herself. Nevertheless, the shock was overwhelming.

Her head swam. Her heart beat wildly.

"I must not give way!" she retorted to herself. "I must put on a brave front. He must not suspect I know."

It took a few moments for her to regain her grip on herself, to draw back her sobbing strength.

Then she knocked at the door.

"Here is your coffee, Mr. Heath," she called.

"Come in, Mrs. Howe. I'm afraid we've delayed you. I had entirely forgotten about breakfast and so I'll be bound, had Currier, You met my right-hand man down stairs, I take it."

"You found the house without trouble?" Marcia inquired, making an effort to address the newcomer in a natural off-hand manner.

"Yes, Mrs. Howe. A young man at the garage directed me."

As Marcia turned to go, her unwilling courtesy prompted her to say:

"Mr. Currier is welcome to stay if he wishes to, Mr. Heath. We can put him up perfectly well."

"Oh, no. He is returning directly. Nevertheless, I greatly appreciate your kindness."

"Mr. Heath is anxious," put in Currier. "She begged me to come home as soon as possible that she might know how Mr. Heath was. Naturally she has been much worried."

"There, there, Currier—that will do," broke in Stanley Heath, flushing. "And now, since Mrs. Howe is here and is in our secret, I may as well tell you that part of the mission on which you came cannot be accomplished. You cannot take the gems back with you to New York. A calamity has befallen them."

"A calamity, sir?"

"Mrs. Howe helped me conceal the jewels downstairs in a hiding place under the kitchen door," continued Stanley Heath. "When she went to get them they were gone."

"It is all very mysterious," broke in Marcia, taking up the tale, "I cannot in any way account for their disappearance and am much distressed. I cannot even see how anybody had the chance to take them. No one knew they were there."

"Would you be willing to show me where they were hidden and allow me to investigate?"

"Certainly. I'll take you downstairs now, while we have the opportunity. When do you start back?"

"That is for Mr. Heath to decide."

"Right off. As soon as you can get under way," Stanley Heath said decisively. "Go down now with Mrs. Howe, since she is so gracious, and have your breakfast. Examine, too, the place where we concealed the jewel case. You may discover a clue she has missed."

Preceding Currier into the kitchen, Marcia went straight to the hearth and pointed to the brick at her feet.

"I was here we put the jewel case," she said.

"I think, with your permission, I will take up the brick," the little man at her elbow quietly announced.

"Certainly," acquiesced Marcia. Taking out his knife, Currier kneft and soon had the brick out of its hole.

Beneath it lay the jewel case, wrapped as before in Stanley Heath's monogrammed handkerchief.

Marcia could not believe her eyes.

"But—but—it wasn't there when I looked, I could swear it wasn't."

"Who could have taken it out? And if some one did why return anything so valuable?" Currier inquired.

"I don't know. I do not understand it at all," the woman replied.

"There is something uncanny about the whole affair."

"Well, at any rate, the gems are here now," said Currier in a matter-of-fact tone.

"And that's the end of the business!" she muttered. "It's

"So-ho!" he muttered ho!"

He was still absorbed in when Marcia, breathless and rejoined him.

"I can think of nothing jewels and their recovery. I happy I had completely to your breakfast. You mind to see Mr. Heath while I ready?"

"I will do that. I shall be at once and he may have orders for me, or perhaps

"Mrs. Heath!" Marcia

as if the name suddenly before her conscience had hitherto forgotten "Yes, of course."

Then turning her head inquired with studied care.

"How long, I wonder, does Heath plan to remain in we make the journey he would go home. This climate is damp and he will, perhaps, you any influence with him, we please advise it?"

The man's small, gray eyes.

"I have no influence with Heath," replied he. "Mrs. Heath has, however. Shall I tell her 'I wish you would.' "

" * * * * *

An hour later My Uncle weighed anchor and disappeared to sea, carrying with him the jewels.

Marcia watched until the snowy ripple foaming in the bow had disappeared, then she sat a chair and brushed her hair across her eyes.

"And that's the end of the business!" she muttered. "It's

Simple Economics

"The fundamental principles of government finance are exact same common-sense principle we follow in the handling of our family finances. So long as government follows these principles, our people will prosper. But if government disregards these principles, it squanders our resources and destroys the public credit."

Easy Pleasant Way TO LOSE FAT

How would you like to lose fat, increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to have a double chin and too round hips and abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clear and clear that it will compel a smile?

Get on the scales to-day and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts that is to nothing and will go on weeks. Take one half teaspoonful of hot water in the evening cut down on pastry and fatty foods go light on potatoes, butter and sugar—and when you have finished the contents of this salt weigh yourself again.

Notice also that you have more energy—you feel younger in body. Kruschen will give you fat permanent surprise. Refuse to let it safeguard your health—you are safe in the Kruschen way.

NOTE—Many people find the only diet change necessary when Kruschen regularly is LESS.

BEAVERS DO THEIR PART
In the Northwest, beavers are helping to build dams that block irrigation canals. By doing this, they are helping to ensure that there is enough water for agriculture and for the environment. This is an important part of the overall ecosystem.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY

HANOVER 4-H FINISHES 100%

The Young Democratic Club of Bethel held a rally-dance at the Grange Hall, Friday evening, Sept. 12. The principal speaker of the evening was Philip E. Buck of Washington, D. C. who is connected with a branch of the U. S. Treasury. Mrs. Florence Thurston, representative candidate, gave a short brilliant speech which was enthusiastically received. Fred Rowell of Norway, county chairman of the Democratic Committee, also spoke.

After an hour of speaking the dancing began and continued until 12. Thanks and appreciation are given to Marshall Hastings who furnished ice cream, candy and clark's; also to the ladies who very generously contributed 14 cakes to the refreshments. Lord's Orchestra furnished some excellent music.

"Matter" is the subject of the Lesson Sermon that will be read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Sept. 20.

The Golden Text is: "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is Spirit" (John 3: 6).

Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the Lord my God commanded me, that ye should do in the land whither ye go to possess it. Keep therefore and do them; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people. Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God; there is none beside him" (Deut. 4: 5, 6, 55).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Matter and Mind are opposites. One is contrary to the other in every nature and essence; hence it is that the world is full of error.

The following is the text of the Lesson-Sermon:
